These three young photographers have been chosen to exhibit in this year’s Midwest Photographers Project—a program establised by the museum in 1982 to support talent in the region. Ohio artist Keil has made a series of portraits involving relationships in depicting intimate, two-person scenes, played by a single model. Minneapolis photographer Justin Newhall explores the energy we put into keeping myths alive by capturing the landscapes, historical sites, descended memorials and makeshift roadside memorials in the modern West. Chicagoan Brian Ulrich documents consumerism, shopping in malls, grocery stores and commercial establishments. Through "The View from here," page 64, Fri 18–Oct 14.
